

NEBRASKA WESLEYAN UNIVERSITY
2008-2009 Annual Report

Fiscal year: June 1, 2008 to May 31, 2009

This is what alumni and friends do.

Dear Alumni, Parents and Friends,

It is our privilege and pleasure to present to you the 2008-09 Annual Report on giving to Nebraska Wesleyan University. As we reflect on the year just completed, we are most grateful for the many people who supported NWU during a year of surprising challenges. I am very pleased to report that in spite of those challenges, a record number of the university's alumni and friends stepped forward to provide financial gifts for scholarships, programs, students, faculty and other special projects.

In the following pages, we salute those individuals, businesses and foundations that have evidenced their "ownership" of, and commitment to, NWU by supporting its efforts through their financial gifts. By doing so, they have demonstrated pride in their university, recognized the important role it has played in their endeavors, and have carried forward the long tradition of support that allows NWU to continue offering an education of the highest quality.

More importantly, we want these pages to convey what we most want to say: Thank you! You are making a difference and it is greatly appreciated.

This year we have begun to refocus on NWU's Annual Fund, which is truly the cornerstone of giving to Nebraska Wesleyan. NWU depends on the Annual Fund for just about everything it needs to operate including faculty and staff development and retention, physical plant operation and maintenance and student scholarship support. A strong Annual Fund also means that tuition can be kept affordable for the student population the university serves. Simply put, NWU would not exist without annual gifts, which support NWU in a way similar to the tax dollars received by state schools.

We would be remiss if we did not also thank those of you who have demonstrated ownership of NWU in so many other ways. Your involvement has included helping with Commencement, attending Homecoming and class reunions and sharing your experience and knowledge with students. You have also provided internships and practicums for students, allowed them to interview and shadow you at work and referred and recruited the best and brightest students to NWU. The whole university grows from your involvement and investment of time. Thank you!

We encourage you to spend a few minutes celebrating with us by reviewing this year's Annual Report. As you do, pay particular attention to those who have shown their consistent commitment by giving to NWU for 25 years or more, a period longer than most of our students have been alive!

Finally, be sure to note those corporations who participated in this year's Great Teaching Program, which enables the good work in our classrooms and co-curricular activities to continue. Their gifts, coupled with the excellence and hard work of NWU's faculty and students, have resulted in the many prestigious national and international scholarships awarded to NWU students this past year.

Again, celebrate with us knowing that your gifts enable Nebraska Wesleyan to prepare young people for rich and fulfilling lives through a fine education in the liberal arts. We are grateful for your moving generosity.

This is what alumni and friends do!

A Sturdy Stool

There are three ways to give to NWU. These gifts form the legs of the "stool" on which the university stands. When all three pillars are strong, Nebraska Wesleyan has the stable financial foundation it needs.

Annual Fund Gifts

NWU cannot exist without a strong Annual Fund. It provides the basis for operating NWU, from salaries to maintenance to scholarships. Annual gifts to NWU are needed in lieu of the tax dollars that support public institutions.

Planned Gifts

Planned gifts are gifts arranged now with assets used later. Examples include wills, trusts, gift annuities, retirement assets, and life insurance policies. Some establish funds during their lives, supplementing them with estate gifts.

Unrestricted/Restricted and Endowed/Expendable Gifts

Unrestricted gifts benefit the university generally. Restricted gifts designate funds for specific programs. These can be gifts of cash, securities, stock, real estate or other assets.

Endowed funds are invested, and only the income is spent on their designated programs. In contrast, expendable funds are spent over the shorter term.

Named endowed or expendable funds may be unrestricted. Such funds help the university meet its changing needs.

Current Giving

While lifetime giving societies reveal much about the loyalty of alumni and friends over many years, a look at current giving offers a picture of where Nebraska Wesleyan University is at this moment.

Stewardship for Nebraska Wesleyan University by alumni, parents, friends and corporations is clearly revealed through annual giving. The people listed here provide an essential channel of funds for Nebraska Wesleyan's current critical needs. Those needs include financial aid, compensation, technology, student activities and services, building maintenance, grounds keeping and many other vital aspects of NWU.

Thank you for your continued annual support of Nebraska Wesleyan University.

Scholarships Support the "Greater Good"

For everyone seeking to change their status in life and build something better for themselves, a good education is the key. It allows people from all walks of life to compete for opportunities and contribute meaningfully to society.

Education can be the great equalizer when it's accessible to everyone with the drive and discipline—and not just those with the financial means—to pursue it.

That's why general scholarships are so essential to Nebraska Wesleyan University. "We won't allow the cost of a great liberal arts education to deter the people who can benefit from it the most," said Tim Thietje, associate vice president for advancement and director of development. "Our general scholarships make the difference for hundreds of students each semester. Those students wouldn't be here without alumni and friends giving their annual support."

"The problems our country faces today require 'all hands on deck,'" said Jeff Mohr, associate professor of social work. "Scholarships keep our graduates' debt burden low. That way, their decisions can be motivated by the greater good more than by their loan burdens."

A Happy 50th Reunion

The class of 1958 marked its 50th reunion last year with a generous showing of support for its alma mater. Their dedication proved that even 50 years removed from your last college class, the impact of a fine education remains strong.

The class raised $127,772 in support of the Annual Fund, endowed scholarships, and the botany lab renovation. This total includes deferred gifts not reflected in the class's current giving totals.

Annual Fund Giving— Steady as It Goes

Giving to Nebraska Wesleyan's Annual Fund remained steady for the 2008-09 fiscal year despite tumult in our national economy. Many other independent colleges saw 10-20% declines in annual giving. Our stability is a testament to a strong core of NWU alumni and friends who make the Annual Fund a philanthropic priority even in times of financial stress.

However, NWU's Annual Fund has been "steady" in another sense that is cause for some concern. Actual dollars raised have remained relatively flat for 20 years while the purchasing power of those dollars has been greatly eroded by inflation.

It now requires more than $1.7 million to provide what $1 million did 20 years ago.

The percentage of alumni giving to the Annual Fund has increased recently to 13.1%, but remains significantly below the high of 50.1% for the 1986-87 fiscal year.

This is why NWU has begun to refocus in earnest on the importance of giving to the Annual Fund.

An independent school like NWU would not exist without its Annual Fund, which provides support in a way similar to the tax appropriations received by state schools.

The Annual Fund supports basic, critical needs for operating the school such as computers, laboratory equipment, books, academic support for students, counseling and wellness services, intramurals and campus activities, buildings and grounds maintenance, heat and lights, dining facilities, faculty and staff salaries and student scholarship support. A robust Annual Fund also helps keep tuition, the university's second major funding source, affordable for students and their families.

We thank those of you who have shown a commitment to NWU by giving to the Annual Fund. We ask that you consider increasing your gift to it. If you have not given to the Annual Fund, please consider starting a new tradition by making your initial gift in the 2009-10 fiscal year. There is no better way to recognize your ownership of Nebraska Wesleyan and support your alma mater!

Diversity Scholarships Defy "Group Think"

What happens to a business that only hires people who think and work one way?

"It's a recipe for stale solutions," said Courtney Baillie, associate professor of accounting. "Intellectual bankruptcy is often quickly followed by financial bankruptcy." She said that diversification is essential "in our investments, our businesses and our universities."

Dynamic thinkers tend to come from dynamic environments. Nebraska Wesleyan University's multicultural programs and diversity scholarships foster that essential dynamism. The Vaughn, Mosaic, and Immigrant/Refugee scholarships help Nebraska Wesleyan attract a diverse student body. The Office of Multicultural Programs ensures that women and minorities have the support they need to thrive here. And the Wolf Fund supports multicultural events, speakers and learning opportunities.

What is true for business is also true for college campuses. Diversity equals strength.

The Lab in Collaborate

"There is no reason whatsoever that meaningful research can't happen at a small liberal arts college like NWU," said Frank Ferraro, assistant professor of psychology. "In fact, many NWU undergraduate psychology students have presented their work at both regional and national conferences." Ferraro believes that NWU actually has a leg up on traditional research institutions when it comes to facilitating student research.

"Professors in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences are here to teach undergraduates—that's far and away our number one priority," Ferraro said. "We help our students create their own research projects. They're free to explore the questions that intrigue them."

And the Student/Faculty Collaborative Research Fund, created through the Flemming Estate gift, supports those endeavors. The topics of projects supported in the 2008-2009 academic year include:

- World War II and Catalan identity
- Sensors for drugs of abuse
- Forensic viability of extracting human DNA from maggots
- Cyanobacterial populations in Nebraska lakes
- Nursing work environments
- Forensic analysis of faunal remains in Jordan
- Moors and Spanish identity
- Nietzsche
- Medical regimens in renal disease

A Purposeful First Step as Alumni

Each year, graduating seniors select a special project to fund in support of their alma mater. The gift serves as a collective first step in a lifetime as dedicated alumni.

Recent senior class projects have focused on beautifying campus and improving the accessibility of our buildings. In an effort to increase the impact of their selected projects, senior classes sometimes turn to reunion alumni classes and others in partnership.

No matter the project's designation, its message is the same: our graduates care about the future, strength and vibrancy of this fine university.

Learning Commons Supports Uncommon Learning

Olin 120, Nebraska Wesleyan's latest learning commons, reflects a growing emphasis in study here: flexibility. The learning commons was established with previous support from the Parent Fund, and was designed with versatility in mind.

Students are free to arrange tables and chairs to suit their needs, accommodating both solitary study and group work. Retractable power sources hang down from the ceiling, allowing students to plug in laptops from just about anywhere in the room.

Watching how students choose to use this space will inform the university's planning for future learning commons spaces across campus.

A Historical Legacy

Professor Emerita of History Elaine Kruse's impact on Nebraska Wesleyan students studying history began in 1985. Thanks to the creation of the History Department's Elaine Kruse Student Research Fund, Kruse's effect on students hasn't stopped with her 2009 retirement.

"We're excited about this fund for two reasons," said Meghan Winchell, assistant professor of history and state coordinator of National History Day. "Because we want to honor all that Elaine has done for students over the years; and because it will support meaningful research for our students."

Precious Resources

Nebraska Wesleyan University is fortunate to have the support of local and regional corporations. Many businesses, especially those that have hired alumni, recognize the value of supporting the educators who prepare tomorrow's professionals.

"People really are any business's most precious resource," said Professor of Economics Loretta Fairchild. "The qualities businesses need, like intelligence, adaptability, creativity and discipline, are all things that I think Nebraska Wesleyan and the liberal arts do a good job of fostering."

Partnerships between Nebraska Wesleyan and regional corporations are mutually beneficial. The corporations listed here see an investment in Nebraska Wesleyan University as an investment in the future leadership of their companies.
